MARYLAND HERITAGE

To earn the Maryland Heritage Patch, it is recommended that girls complete 7 of the 12 listed activities.

1. Learn about the symbols of Maryland: The Maryland State Flag, The Maryland State Bird, The Maryland State Flower, The Maryland State Great Seal, and The Maryland State Quarter.
2. Who were George and Cecil Calvert? Learn about these two men and their impact on the history of Maryland. Share what you find with others in your group and compile your information to create a complete biography of George and Cecil Calvert.
3. Identify at least three historic site, homes, or museums that are part of the history of your community. Select one to learn about. Then take others on a tour with your group acting as guides.
4. Visit a historical site, museum, or home in Maryland that is outside of your community. Prepare for your field trip by finding out some background information about the place you'll visit. Discuss what you learned about Maryland's past after you've made the trip.
5. As a group, pick out a significant event in Maryland history and reenact the event for others with costumes and props that can be improvised from articles borrowed from home and school.
6. Make a quilt, banner, or collage that depicts Maryland history.
7. Pick out at least two important women Marylanders who have contributed significantly to American life. Highlight their contributions to others by writing a song or poem about them, presenting a dramatic portrayal, or drawing or painting a picture which you explain.
8. Education is a rich part of America's history. Find out about the history of Maryland Universities and Colleges. Pick one to visit as a group and arrange for a tour.
9. The Chesapeake Bay has dominated Maryland's history and geography and it will always be Maryland's most valuable resource. Today the Bay is in trouble. Find out why and what private organizations and all levels of government are doing to save the bay.
10. Create a trivia game, crossword puzzle, or board game about Maryland. Include categories or questions about the following: Maryland's history, Maryland's symbols, the Chesapeake Bay, Maryland's natural resources, notable Marylanders, and your local community.
11. Invite a speaker to your group who is an expert in Maryland history, or who can provide unique insight to Maryland's past.
12. Explore the Girl Scout heritage in your community. Interview someone who has been in Girl Scouting for several years or more.

MARYLAND SYMBOLS

Maryland was founded as an English colony in 1634 by Cecil Calvert, the second Lord Baltimore. Maryland gained statehood as the seventh state on April 28, 1788.

State Flag

The Maryland State flag contains the family crests of both the Calvert and the Crossland families. The black and gold designs belong to the Calvert family. The red and white design belongs to the Crossland family. The flag was adopted 1904.

State Bird

The Baltimore Oriole (Icterus galbula) is the official Maryland bird. The female oriole's feathers are brownish-olive and dull orange, but the male's feathers are black and golden orange similar to the colors in the Calvert shield. Maryland made started making special provisions to protect the Baltimore Oriole in 1882 .

State Flower

The Black-Eyed Susan (Rudbeckia hirta) has been the official Maryland flower since 1918 when it was designated the "Floral Emblem" of Maryland by the General Assembly. The colors are the same as the colors Lord Baltimore used in his coat of arms.

Great Seal

The Great Seal of Maryland is used by the Governor and the Secretary of State to authenticate Acts of the General Assembly and for other official purposes. The Secretary of State is the designated custodian of the Great Seal, and provides guidance on its use. The current seal was adopted in 1874.

State Quarter

The Maryland quarter focuses on the dome of the Maryland Statehouse. The Statehouse was built in 1772 and it features the country's largest wooden dome built without nails. Leaf clusters are pictured from the state tree, the White Oak, and Maryland's nickname, "The Old Line State" is displayed.

CALVERT FAMILY

Calvert, George, 1st Baron Baltimore

Born 1580, Died 1632

George Calvert maintained a place in the British government from 1606 to 1625. Calvert had been a member of the Virginia Company and a member of the council of the New England Company, but, wishing to found his own colony, he was granted the peninsula of Avalon in Newfoundland (Northern North America) in 1623. This colony did not prosper, so in 1629 Baltimore petitioned for a grant farther south where the weather was less severe. In 1632 the king granted him the territory north of the Potomac River that became the province of Maryland. He initiated and prepared the charter for this new colony but died before it could be accepted. The grant passed to his son, Cecilius Calvert, whom history would name the founder of Maryland.

Calvert, Cecilius, 2nd Baron of Baltimore

Born 1605, Died 1675

Cecil Calvert was first proprietor of the colony of Maryland. After his father's death, he received the province in 1632 as a grant from the king, in place of his father. Cecil never visited Maryland himself, but governed it by means of deputies until he died in 1675. His title was succeeded to his last deputy, his son, Charles Calvert.

HISTORICAL PLACES

Highlighting Baltimore's Historical Federal Hill:

www.historicalfederalhill.org

www.federalhillonline.com

This is an abridged history of Federal Hill. A complete history may be found at www.federalhillonline.com/history.htm

The first Anglo Saxon to lay eyes on Federal Hill was the celebrated English Colonial Settler Captain John Smith (1580-1631). In June of 1608 he sailed from Jamestown up the Chesapeake Bay for a 19-day journey that ended with a voyage up the Patapsco River. It was there that Smith reported seeing "a great red bank of clay flanking a natural harbor basin." Early Baltimore settlers referred to this "great red bank of clay" as "John Smith's Hill".

In May of 1788, 4,000 Baltimoreans marched through the City's streets in a parade organized by Commodore Joshua Berry to celebrate the State of Maryland's ratification of the United States Constitution. The procession featured a 15-foot model of a fully rigged sailing ship named the "Federalist." A contingent of the Port of Baltimore's ship captains, mates, and sailors marching in the parade decided to moor the Federalist at the foot of John Smith's Hill, henceforth referred to by the name we have come to know and love: Federal Hill.

The City purchased Federal Hill in 1880 and dedicated it as a public park. Ninety years later, the "Federal Hill District" was accepted for inclusion in the National Register of Historic Places. The "District" includes Federal Hill Park and the immediate neighborhood south to West Street, west to Hanover Street, north to Hughes Street and east to Covington Street.

Just after the turn of the Century, Federal Hill once again served as a critical vantage point as Baltimoreans were forced to come to grips with perhaps the greatest disaster to ever befall the City, the Great Baltimore Fire of 1904.

On February 7th, 1904 a fire was fought in Federal Hill by 1,231 firefighters, 57 Engines, 9 Trucks, 2 Hose Companies, 1 Fire Boat, one Police Boat, several Tug Boats and many volunteers from several fire companies. Washington D.C., New York, Philadelphia, Wilmington Del, Atlantic City NJ, Pennsylvania, and all Counties surrounding Baltimore took part in the battle. The City Of Baltimore furnished 460 firefighters, 24 Engines, 8 Trucks, and several Boats. The fire claimed 140 acres, more than seventy blocks. Over 1500 buildings were destroyed, along with 2 large Lumber Yards. The number of businesses, banks, enterprises and merchants that were destroyed was around 2,500. About 35,000 people were left jobless in the dead of winter.

In the 1960's while the war in Vietnam commanded the Nation's attention, a war over the very existence of Federal Hill was waged by the State Roads Administration. Plans to construct a cloverleaf interchange connecting 1-70, I-83 and I-95 would have replaced Federal Hill Park and, in the process, cut through the heart of Fells Point. In 1967, a dedicated group of concerned Federal Hill and Fells Point residents founded the Society for the Preservation of Federal Hill and Fells Point. A "citizen's suit" was brought and, after a nine year court battle, the State decided to abandon the project. Then Baltimore City Council Member Barbara Mikulski used her vocal opposition to the State's plan as a platform to launch a very visible and ultimately successful campaign for a U.S. Senate seat, which she still occupies to this day.

From time to time since then, the breathtaking views to and of Federal Hill and the Park itself have been repeatedly threatened by politically well-connected developers seeking to build high rise apartments, hotels and other commercial development projects on the waterfront property at the foot of the Hill along Key Highway. Each time, the Neighborhood has risen up to oppose these plans out of respect for the important role that Federal Hill has played in our nation's and in Baltimore's colorful history.
