Be a Partner with the World– Our Chalet Report Form

As girls learn about Our Chalet and Swiss culture, it is an opportune moment to learn about and contribute to the Juliette Low World Friendship Fund. This patch packet is meant as a tool for learning about our sister Girl Scouts in Switzerland and as a means for contributing to the Juliette Low World Friendship Fund. Girl Scouts of Central Maryland challenges each individual and troop/group to reach out to Girl Scouts and Girl Guides across the globe by contributing to the Juliette Low World Friendship Fund as they complete this patch packet.
OUR CHALET WIDE GAME

The purpose of a wide game is to have fun while learning. A wide game is played by teams following a trail with stops at stations to try new activities. This wide game is designed to let 60-80 girls "Be a Partner With the World – Our Chalet" in a 2-1/2 hour event. The cost to each participant is $5.50 ($5 for the JLFWFF and $.50 for expenses). The event should be held in a meeting place with one area large enough for everyone to gather and several smaller areas for activities.

15 mins. REGISTRATION Collect permission slips and money. Have name tags ready for six teams. (ex: pink circles, yellow squares, etc.) Print girls' names on name tags.

15 mins. OPENING A flag ceremony with a World Flag (if possible). Sing Our Chalet Song. Describe the wide game to the girls and arrange them in their teams to begin visiting each station. (ex: pink circles to Station I, yellow squares to Station II, etc. Tell leaders beforehand which direction the girls will move.) Ring a bell or blow a whistle every 15 minutes for teams to change stations.

90 mins STATIONS Ask each troop's leader(s) to prepare one "Be a Partner With the World – Our Chalet" requirement to present to the girls in fifteen minutes. Encourage hands-on activities, instead of lectures.

10 mins. With the girls still in their last station, discuss how their last activity helped them increase their knowledge of global understanding. Help print their answers clearly on 8-1/2" x 11" paper.

20 mins. CLOSING Everyone gathers again. Sing Our Chalet again. Ask each team to tell how their last activity helped Juliette Low's dream. (Put their answers on a poster for the display.) Announce how much has been collected for the Juliette Low World Friendship Fund. Present "Be A Partner With The World – Our Chalet" patches.

SAMPLE STATIONS: Total 90 minutes
(The girls work best in groups of about 10-12. If your group is larger than 75, form more teams and add more stations.)

Station 1 (Req. #1) Our Chalet
Take the girls on a "flight" to Switzerland to visit Our Chalet. Show them pictures and tell them all about the skiing, hiking, and rafting opportunities in Switzerland. Let the team decide what activity they would most enjoy at Our Chalet.

ENGLISH

1. High up, high on the mountain,
   We've founded our Chalet,
   Its sloping roof and wide
   Shall shelter us without a care.
   And each Girl Scout and Guide
   Shall find a welcome there

2. High up, high on the mountain,
   We'll go to our Chalet;
   Our simple life is free,
   Our hearts are light, our songs are gay,
   We ever shall remember
   The joys of our Chalet.

3. High up, high on the mountain,
   We've founded our Chalet;
   And this its dedication
   Shall never fail nor be undone:
   Each race, each creed, each nation,
   Beneath its roof are one.

FRENCH

1. Lahaut, sur la montagne,
   Il est un grand Chalet;
   Son large toit penche
   Abriterà notre arnitie;
   Pour toutes le Eclaireuses,
   Il sera le foyer

2. Lahaut, sur la montagne,
   Allons au grand Chalet
   Gouter la joie du camp
   Et du travail fait en chantant,
   La vie simple et sereine
   Et le recueillement.

3. Lahaut, sur la montagne,
   Dans notre grand Chalet,
   Autour de l'atre gris
   Ou le feu clair pettile et rit,
   Nous nous sentons unies
   Et fortes par l'esprit.

The Frog King or Iron Heinrich
By Jacob and Wilhelm Grimm

In olden times, when wishing still did some good, there lived a king whose daughters were all beautiful, but the youngest was so beautiful that the sun itself, who, indeed, has seen so much, marveled every time it shone upon her face. In the vicinity of the king's castle there was a large, dark forest, and in this forest, beneath an old linden tree, there was a well. In the heat of the day the princess would go out into the forest and sit on the edge of the cool well. To pass the time she would take a golden ball, throw it into the air, and then catch it. It was her favorite plaything.

Now one day it happened that the princess's golden ball did not fall into her hands, that she held up high, but instead it fell to the ground and rolled right into the water. The princess followed it with her eyes, but the ball disappeared, and the well was so deep that she could not see its bottom. Then she began to cry. She cried louder and louder, and she could not console herself.

As she was thus lamenting, someone called out to her, "What is the matter with you, princess? Your crying would turn a stone to pity."

She looked around to see where the voice was coming from and saw a frog, who had stuck his thick, ugly head out of the water. "Oh, it's you, old water-splasher," she said. "I am crying because my golden ball has fallen into the well."

"Be still and stop crying," answered the frog. "I can help you, but what will you give me if I bring back your plaything?"

"Whatever you want, dear frog," she said, "my clothes, my pearls and precious stones, and even the golden crown that I am wearing."

The frog answered, "I do not want your clothes, your pearls and precious stones, nor your golden crown, but if you will love me and accept me as a companion and playmate, and let me sit next to you at your table and eat from your golden plate and drink from your cup and sleep in your bed, if you will promise this to me, then I'll dive down and bring your golden ball back to you."

"Oh, yes," she said, "I promise all of that to you if you will just bring the ball back to me." But she thought, "What is this stupid frog trying to say? He just sits here in the water with his own kind and croaks. He cannot be a companion to a human."

As soon as the frog heard her say "yes" he stuck his head under and dove to the bottom. He paddled back up a short time later with the golden ball in his mouth and threw it onto the grass. The princess was filled with joy when she saw her beautiful plaything once again, picked it up, and ran off.

"Wait, wait," called the frog. "take me along. I cannot run as fast as you." But what did it help him, that he croaked out after her as loudly as he could? She paid no attention to him, but instead hurried home and soon forgot the poor frog, who had to return again to his well.

The next day the princess was sitting at the table with the king and all the people of the court, and was eating from her golden plate when something came creeping up the marble steps: plip, plop, plip, plop. As soon as it reached the top, there came a knock at the door, and a voice called out, "Princess, youngest, open the door for me!"

She ran to see who was outside. She opened the door, and the frog was sitting there. Frightened, she slammed the door shut and returned to the table. The king saw that her heart was pounding and asked, "My child, why are you afraid? Is there a giant outside the door who wants to get you?"

"Oh, no," she answered. "it is a disgusting frog."

"What does the frog want from you?"

"Oh, father dear, yesterday when I was sitting near the well in the forest and playing, my golden ball fell into the water. And because I was crying so much, the frog brought it back, and because he insisted, I promised him that he could be my companion, but I didn't think that he could leave his water. But now he is just outside the door and wants to come in."
Just then there came a second knock at the door, and a voice called out:

Youngest daughter of the king,
Open the door for me,
Don't you know what yesterday, You said to me down by the well?
Youngest daughter of the king,
Open up the door for me.

The king said, "What you have promised, you must keep. Go and let the frog in."

She went and opened the door, and the frog hopped in, then followed her up to her chair. He sat there and called out, "Lift me up next to you."

She hesitated, until finally the king commanded her to do it. When the frog was seated next to her he said, "Now push your golden plate closer, so we can eat together."

She did it, but one could see that she did not want to. The frog enjoyed his meal, but for her every bite stuck in her throat. Finally he said, "I have eaten all I want and am tired. Now carry me to your room and make your bed so that we can go to sleep."

The princess began to cry and was afraid of the cold frog and did not dare to even touch him, and yet he was supposed to sleep in her beautiful, clean bed.

The king became angry and said, "You should not despise someone who has helped you in time of need."

She picked him up with two fingers, carried him upstairs, and set him in a corner. As she was lying in bed, he came creeping up to her and said, "I am tired, and I want to sleep as well as you do. Pick me up or I'll tell your father."

With that she became bitterly angry and threw him against the wall with all her might. "Now you will have your peace, you disgusting frog!"

But when he fell down, he was not a frog, but a prince with beautiful friendly eyes. And he was now, according to her father's will, her dear companion and husband. He told her how he had been enchanted by a wicked witch, and that she alone could have rescued him from the well, and that tomorrow they would go together to his kingdom. Then they fell asleep.

The next morning, just as the sun was waking them, a carriage pulled up, drawn by eight horses. They had white ostrich feathers on their heads and were outfitted with chains of gold. At the rear stood the young king's servant, faithful Heinrich. Faithful Heinrich had been so saddened by his master's transformation into a frog that he had had to place three iron bands around his heart to keep it from bursting in grief and sorrow. The carriage was to take the king back to his kingdom. Faithful Heinrich lifted them both inside and took his place at the rear. He was filled with joy over the redemption. After they had gone a short distance, the prince heard a crack from behind, as though something had broken.

He turned around and said, "Heinrich, the carriage is breaking apart."

No, my lord, the carriage it's not,
But one of the bands surrounding my heart,
That suffered such great pain,
When you were sitting in the well,
When you were a frog.

Once again, and then once again the prince heard a cracking sound and thought that the carriage was breaking apart, but it was the bands springing from faithful Heinrich's heart because his master was now redeemed and happy.

- The Grimms’ source: Not known precisely, but apparently from an oral tradition of the family Wild in Kassel. (Wilhelm Grimm married a member of this family, Dortchen Wild.)
- A version of this tale was included in the Grimms' manuscript collection of 1810. From the first (1812) to the last (1857) editions published during the Grimms' lifetime, "The Frog King" has always been number one in their folktale collection.
Blindbock

Blindbock is the Swedish version of "Blind Man's Buff," a game played as early as 2,000 years ago in Greece. Though Blindbock was considered a game for adults in Sweden during the Middle Ages, by the 19th century, the game was played mainly by children.

According to the standard rules, one player is blindfolded and spun around several times. The other players, who are not blindfolded, amuse themselves by calling out to the blindfolded player-- the "blind buck" in the Swedish version-- and dodging out of the player's reach. When the blindfolded player finally locates another player and tags him, he becomes the next blind buck.

Kubb

A traditional Swedish viking game played outdoors can involve children as young as four to six, and in as small or large a group that can be divided. Kubb has players throwing sticks at an object designated as "King." The Kubbs are wooden blocks or other items able to be knocked over that are set up along the sides of the playing field. With a helicopter throw, each player takes his turn tossing a stick over the King to try and knock over the Kubbs. Once a team has knocked over the most Kubbs, that team may then knock over the King and win the game.

Don't Look Back, The Fox Walks Around

Don't Look Back, The Fox Walks Around can be played by any number of children who sit in a circle facing each other. One child plays the fox and walks around the outside of the circle behind the other children. The fox carries a piece of fabric, a small stone or another object. The fox drops the item behind one of the children in the circle. As soon as that child knows the object was dropped behind him or her, he or she jumps up and tries to catch the fox. The fox runs and tries to get back around the circle and sit in the seat of the child who was tagged. If the fox makes it back to the child's seat, the other child becomes the fox. If the fox is tagged, however, he plays the fox again and chooses another child to tag. If the child who is tagged doesn't know the item was dropped behind him or her, and the fox can run around the circle before that child realizes it, the tagged child becomes a "lazy egg" and must sit inside the circle until another child becomes a lazy egg.
There are many national holidays celebrated in Switzerland. These include Berchtold's Day, St Stephen's Day, Christmas, and the Swiss National Day. There are many traditions ranging from food to sports, which make the Swiss culture quite unique.

Berchtold's Day
Berchtold's Day is called Berchtoldstag, and it falls on 2nd January as a remembrance of Duke Berchtold V of Zähringen who founded Berne. It is a family-oriented celebration that is only celebrated in some of the cantons. According to legend, Duke Berchtold V killed a bear, however some say he actually killed a squirrel.

The reason why people say that Duke Berchtold V killed a squirrel instead of a bear is because of the food. Nuts are gathered in early autumn for the annual food festival, which is a feast of nuts. Indeed, the Swiss are a bit nutty as celebrators will play nut-related games or sports, eat food containing nuts, sing, and do folk dancing. A popular game played on this day is the building of "hocks" composed of four nuts placed close together with a fifth balanced on top. This may look simple but the game requires a lot of skill, patience, and concentration. The children begin gathering and stockpiling nuts for Berchtold's Day festivities early in the fall.

Swiss National Day
Swiss National Day is called Nationalfeiertag and it falls on 1st August. Back in year 1921, it was declared as Switzerland’s birthday. Town people get involves in paper lantern parades, bonfires, fireworks displays, and Swiss flags hanging. On this day, a type of baked bread known as ‘Augustweggen’ is eaten. There are also sessions of barbecues and family gatherings, just like the American Independence Day celebration. A traditional way of celebrating is to have breakfast at the farm and have a good time experiencing farm works such as milking cows, making cheese, making bread, jam making, and other activities. It is truly a fun family day.

Christmas
Christmas is called Weihnachten and it falls on 25th December. Unlike in America where Santa Claus delivers presents, an angel called Christkindli delivers them. Christkindli wears a white robe and a jeweled crown, however he veils his face. Children know when Christkindli has arrived, as silver bells tinkle to announce his arrival. When he arrives, candles are lit on the tree and he gives out the presents. These presents are kept in a basket. Food features after midnight mass on Christmas. They eat ringli which are large donuts and drink hot chocolate. For more on Christmas in Switzerland, visit http://www.chiff.com/christmas/christmas-switzerland.htm.

Stephen’s Day
Stephen’s Day is called Stephanstag and it falls on 26th December. In other parts of the world, this is called Boxing Day. On this day, people eat St Stephen's Day Pie, which consists of ham and turkey. It is similar to cottage pie with a beef filling.
SCHERENSCHNITT

Here's an easy craft that takes little materials. You will need:

- Colored paper
- Glue
- Scissors

This Swiss craft involves cutting a design out of colored paper, usually black, and then displaying it on a lighter colored paper, usually white. By cutting out the outline and fine features of your design, the white then shows through in the background of your picture. Your entire design should be cut from one single sheet of paper.

"During the 1800s in Switzerland, artists decorated birth certificates, declarations of love and New Year's wishes with colorful paper cuts. Nature inspired most of the designs. The tulip and the carnation were the most popular" They also created "black silhouette scenes in hearts. Their paper cuts were ... intricate" (Phyllis Fiarotta and Noel Fiarotta "Paper Crafts Around the World", May 1996)

ALSO WITH PAPER:

Coat of Arms - "In Switzerland in the 1700s, craftspeople cut intricate patterns for door knockers and keyhole plates. They also cut paper into coats of arms to be used for marriage licenses, birth certificates and business transactions. Create your own family coat-of-arms design and use it as writing paper or a family shield to hang on the wall." (Phyllis Fiarotta and Noel Fiarotta "Paper Crafts Around the World", May 1996)

Make your own COWBELL

You will need:

- Cans of Any Type
- Metal Weights, or Washers
- String

Punch one or two holes in the top of your can. Attach a weight or washer to the can with string. Practice knot tying and find a knot that holds your “bell” in place. Use your string to make a collar that the Cowbell hangs from. At Our Chalet they use paper and felt for decoration. Flowers, mountains, and patterns are commonly used.
Swiss Recipes

Swiss Recipes

FOOD: Have a tasting party with dishes unique to Switzerland that might be served at Our Chalet. Learn how chocolate is made, or learn about the cheese making process.

Swiss food is as mixed as its population with recipes influenced by the traditional meals of France, Germany and Italy. There are also an enormous number of specialties specific to each region. Our Chalet serves typically Bernese food which means there is not a great deal of meat.

Switzerland is famous for its cakes and confectionary, a huge variety of breads, as well as its cheeses. The most well-known dishes are the fondue (cheese cooked in wine), raclette (a special type of cheese cooked in front of an open fire), rösti (‘grated potatoes, fried) and Bircher müesli (fruit in yogurt, cream and oatmeal). The most popular dishes served at Our Chalet can be found in "The Bell Rings: A Cook-Book from Our Chalet."

Chocolate Fondue

Melt 6 squares of unsweetened chocolate
Add 1 1/2 cups sugar, 1 cup light cream, and 1 stick (1/2 cup) butter.
Stir constantly until mixture thickens-about 5 minutes.
Use a low heat, so as not to burn chocolate!

Favorite dippers- marshmallows, apple slices, banana slices, strawberries, squares of pound or angel food cake

Cheese Fingers (Batons Au Fromage)

- Cheese
- Oil
- Pastry

Cut some fingers of cheese about 1 inch thick, roll each in a piece of flaky pastry and seal well, then fry in deep oil until the batons are golden brown. If Gruyere cheese is use, add a little salt and pepper to the pastry, but this is not necessary with Cheddar cheese, which gives an equally good result.

Serve hot or cold as a hors d'oeuvre or after dinner savory.

"Rösti", Bernese Fried Potatoes

Serves 4:

- 1 kg potatoes
- 1 large onion finely chopped
- Bacon cut into small cubes

Parboil the potatoes, leaving their skins on. Peel, and grate coarsely. Lightly fry the onions, adding the bacon cut into small pieces and continue to fry until golden brown. Add the potatoes to the onion and bacon mixture. Turn carefully from time to time whilst frying, until the "Rösti" is crisp.

The Colors Game

Teach your group the names of the colors in French, German, and Italian. Once they know them, play a game where someone calls out a color in any of the languages. The girls then have to run around the room and touch something of that color. The last one to touch something is the caller for the next round.
